ABERDEEN, SD - AUGUST 2010

When I began my journey with Celebrating Home I had no idea how significantly this single move would change my family's life.

When I joined, we were one payment away from losing our home. We had just passed our second Christmas with no gifts for our children under the tree from Mom and Dad – we just could not do it. We wrote “hot” checks to keep the heat on. Things were not good and had been that way for a long time; years in fact.

As a girl growing up in Aberdeen, South Dakota, I always thought how wonderful it would be to live in one of those huge, old Victorian homes on the north side of town. About a year ago, we bought one of those homes. We have also paid off all of our credit card debt, with the final payment made in February of 2010. We had over $11,000 in credit debt when I started as a Designer. And after being a part of this company for a year and a half, we no longer needed food stamps to help us get by, and we have not needed them since.

I am working on the goal of earning the Mercedes! As I spoke with Cheryl Marrant the other day I told her that, “all my girls drive nicer cars than I do.” She said she had told her husband that out of everyone she knows on the Car Track, “Rebecca was the one person who really NEEDED to have a new car.” Let me introduce you to my van... it has a hole in the roof which allows the rain to get in and so the interior carpet smells. It has no struts or shocks – those went out about a year ago. Oh, and did I mention that it basically has no muffler and that it also takes about three tries to get her started? The good thing is that she is still going and I own her free and clear! Needless to say, the goal is to earn the new car and fix the old one for my teenager to drive around. “Steady as she goes!” This is my plan for earning the car and helping my team earn their cars, too!

I have also been blessed with being able to help members of my team to realize the dreams of staying at home with their kids, having extra money to spoil themselves and their families, and finding the courage within themselves that they did not know they had. Onward we go to financial freedom!
